

Study
International Public
Health Management,
MSc at the UE

Become an expert and start your career in the public health sector.

Why the UE?

The health sector is one of the most important pillars of any country. This makes it even more important to have qualified professionals who not only weigh up the health aspects but can also make forward-looking decisions at the management level. In the Master's programme International Public Health Management you will be optimally prepared for precisely these two requirements to enter a management role directly upon graduation.

In addition to professional skills and knowledge taught by excellent professors from science and business, you will also strengthen your scientific methods during the master's programme. Through interdisciplinary modules and individual support, you will expand your social skills in order to successfully complete management roles. Case studies, business games, project and research internships with well-known business partners also expand your theoretical education. Depending on the time format in which you complete your studies, there is still enough time for a job to apply your theoretical knowledge directly in practice.
