Prevention & Therapy
Management,
MSc at the UE

Advance Your Career in Prevention & Therapy Management on a Global Scale.

Why the UE?

The Master's degree programme in Prevention & Therapy Management at the University of Europe for Applied Sciences (UE) is designed to prepare students for key roles in strategic planning, precise control, and efficient organisation within outpatient and inpatient prevention and therapy providers. These encompass a diverse range of establishments, including clinics, therapy practices, rehabilitation facilities, wellness spas, and health-oriented fitness centers, all thriving in the expanding healthcare market.

Throughout the programme, students engage in a comprehensive curriculum that sharpens their expertise in therapy-specific, health-specific, and prevention-specific areas. This is seamlessly combined with foundational management skills and essential business knowledge to provide graduates with skills that will equip them to succeed in a multi-faceted healthcare management environment. By immersing themselves in this holistic approach, graduates are prepared not only to provide patient care and customer service, but also to confidently lead facilities on a prosperous economic path.
